TraCIM: Computational Aims Database – Version: 1.1

The goal of the TraCIM Computational Aims Database and Website is to provide a system for storing and managing documents that record the specifications of computational aims arising in metrology. The specifications can then be cited by other parts of the TraCIM system. It is not the intention of NPL to criticise any contributions to the TraCIM Computational Aims Database and Website, but all will be subject to a review process. The following sections outline the conditions of use of the TraCIM Computational Aims Database and Website.
